Curiosa Americana.

IN continuation of our article upon the relics of Washington, we take pleasure in presenting our readers, in this number of our catalogue, with engravings and description of two very remarkable coins which have been kindly furnished us from the collection of Winslow J. Howard, Esq., of this city. The first is a silver coin, which can, with propriety, be entitled the "Washington Half Dollar of 1792." This curious and interesting relic of history had long been in the possession of a gentleman in this city, by the name of Bosuet. He took it in way of change for a half dollar, 27 years ago; and had kept it carefully stowed away, only occasionally bringing it out to show to the curious, refusing many offers for its purchase, until lately he was persuaded to part with it, at a large price, to the present owner; in whose hands it will, without doubt, remain, as one of the valuable gems of his collection.

On the obverse is represented a fine bust of Washington, facing the left, dressed in military costume. Legend—"G. Washington, President I., 1792." Reverse—An Eagle with spread wings, bearing on its breast the American shield, and holding in one talon a bundle of thirteen arrows, in the other, an olive branch. Legend—"United States of America." There is a line which runs across the piece from the letter M to the tip of one of the wings, which shows that the die was broken at the time this coin was struck.

How many coins like the above are in existence at the present time, it is impossible to say; but the present owner considers it unique. If, however, any one of our readers should happen to have an original genuine, we would be most happy to know it. The weight of the coin is at the present time, 206 grains. The half dollar ordered by Congress, was to weigh 208 grains.

In 1791, Congress offered inducements to artists for designs for the new coins, "bearing an emblematic bust of Liberty." Some one more patriotic than the rest, placed upon his pattern the likeness of Washington, the father of his country, and protector of liberty. The device was quickly passed by the Senate; but when it came to the House, it was disapproved of, and by Washington himself, who believed that it would be viewed as "the stamp of royalty," and that it would not only wound the feelings of many friends, but would "gratify his enemies;" besides, the President's delicacy would not allow him to sign a bill of the kind, which might blast his reputation, and the compliment be extended to his successors.

The next coin is in pure copper, and is truly a well-executed design. On the obverse is a bust facing the right, which resembles that of an Indian chief or warrior; on the shoulder, within a small circle, are to be seen a flag and sword crossed, and the fleur de lis of France; on the breast is a small head with wings. Legend—"NON-DEPENDENS STATUS." Obverse—Full length figure of an Indian seated on a globe, around the loins is an apron of feathers; in the right hand he holds a branch of tobacco, in the left a shield, with the American flag and sword crossed, and fleur de lis the same as on the shoulder-knot of the obverse. Around the whole is the Legend—"AMERICA, 1778."

This piece is without doubt unique, and is supposed to be one of the many pattern pieces engraved and designed by Paul Revere.

Autographs and their Prices.

IN sending forth to our numerous patrons this, the largest Catalogue of Autograph Letters ever published in America, it may not be inappropriate to say a few words on the very interesting subject of "Autographs and their Prices." Collections of various kinds, such as Portraits, Coins, Rare Books, &c., by private individuals, as well as public societies, have long been in vogue within the precincts of the civilized world. And the collectors of these, and other rarities, have, by the enthusiastic zeal they have manifested in the pursuit of their darling object, subjected themselves alike to the sneers of the prosy critic and the keen satires of the poet. But the taste for collecting the Autographs of great men, is comparatively a modern one. The world, daily growing wiser, has at last discovered that such collections are not only deeply interesting as mementos of departed worth, but highly valuable as materials of history, to the statesman, the biographer, and the historian. Attractive as other collections undoubtedly are, it cannot be questioned that collections of Autographs are of pre-eminent interest and importance, inasmuch as they constitute a part of the works of those whose memory we fondly cherish, and whose virtues and heroic deeds we love to praise and celebrate. To the man of taste, the man of sympathy, whose heart throbs responsively to the audible beatings of the great heart of humanity, what can be more interesting, what more elevating, than to look with loving eyes on the lines traced by the hand of a Washington, a Burke, a Franklin, a Howard? Time, with unsparing diligence, may ruthlessly have swept away the patriot from the stage of existence; death, with unrelinquishing grasp may have laid its hand on the philosopher and the statesman. But the few precious lines we love to look upon and to cherish with jealous reverence, yet remain. And as we read them again and again, imagination carries us back to the time when these heroes of the past lived, and breathed, and acted, leaving us their example as a glorious inheritance, and urging us to imitate, as far as possible, their patriotism and virtue.

We have taken some pains to collect from various reliable sources the following facts relating to autograph collectors, and the prices for which rare autographs have sold at recent sales:

Sir Richard Phillips claims to be the first collector of Autographs; but a writer in Notes and Queries says that collections of Autographs had their origin in Germany about the middle of the sixteenth century, "where travelers carried with them white-paper books to obtain the signatures of eminent persons, or of new acquaintance. Such a book was called an Album, Hortus Amicorum, or Thesaurus Amicorum. The oldest in the British Museum is dated 1578, and appears to have belonged to a lady." Whatever Sir Richard may claim, "it is certain," writes Catherine Hutton, "that he was in possession of reams of these precious relics, each arranged by the alphabetical name of the writer. He was so well aware of their value, at a time when they were little thought of by others, that he has been heard to say he would as soon part with a tooth as a letter of Colley Cibber's; and that he expected a grant of land in America for a manuscript of Washington's."

The same writer adds: "William Upcott has been styled the emperor of Autographs. He had printed, mostly for private distribution, a magnificent catalogue on royal 4to., containing 32,000 items of autographs, principally bound in volumes, and illustrated with portraits, etc., without regard to expense."

"Thomas Thorpe, bookseller, of London, has been the merchant of Autographs." It is probable he bought and sold more curiosities of this description than any other dealer. He has been known to publish, in four years, catalogues containing collectively 25,222 autographs.

Francis Moore, for fifty years a resident of Paris, was also an extensive collector of Autographs and manuscripts. His collection was particularly rich in letters and documents relating to France and England. The collection, together with other important autographs, was sold by auction, in London, in April, 1856. Among the prices realized may be named the following:—Letter of Catherine of Aragon, first queen of Henry VIII., with seal, $68; Mary, Queen of Scots, and Francis II., king of France, her husband—signatures of both to a document, $70; Edward IV., king of England, letter subscribed and signed, $80; Richard III., letter subscribed and signed, $174; Henry VII., letter subscribed and signed, $61; Henry VIII., ditto, $30; Queen Elizabeth, short letter in French, $70; Prince Rupert, letter, $31; Cardinal Wolsey, letter, $119; Archbishop Laud, letter, $30.

At the sale of C. Meigh's Autographs, London, February, 1856, a letter of Talleyrand's sold for $30; letter of General Wolfe's, $34; Fenelon's Autograph Instructions for his Defense against the Accusations of Bossuet, $100; Brown's Britannia's Pastorals (1616), with marginal notes in the autograph of Milton, $109; Twelve pages in the autograph of Tasso, $150.

At the sale of Richard C. Lambe's collection, London, August, 1856, forty-four letters of the poet Cowper's were sold, each in a separate lot. One, consisting of four pages 4to. sold for $53. The rest also realized high prices.

At other recent London sales the following prices have been obtained: Southey, letter, $20; Jonathan Swift, letter, $26; Henry IV., of France, love-letter, $30; Oliver Goldsmith, letter to Garrick, with his answer on the reverse, $36; Sir Richard Steele, letter, $30; Byron, $22; O. Cromwell, letter to "Mr. Cotton, pastor to the church att Boston, in New England," 1651, $178; the autograph MS. of Sir W. Scott's "Peveril of the Peak" (sold 1857), $248; Dryden's Virgil, 3 vols, 8vo., with autograph of Dr. Johnson in each volume, $24; Spenser's Faerie Queene, 2 vols. 4to., 1590–96, with numerous MS. notes by Ireland, which this noted forger passed off as the genuine productions of Shakspeare! $85.

And, to close this list, we may add that the highest price ever realized for an autograph signature, was that paid by the British Museum for the autograph of the immortal Shakspeare. It was written on the fly-leaf of the first edition of Montaigne's Essays, translated by Florio, 1603. The sum paid for it was $500!!

As to manuscripts, the prices realized for some of the rarest at recent sales have been almost fabulous. At an important sale in London, in 1856, a Greek MS. of the 12th century, on vellum, viz., "Dioscoridis Operæ," folio, with several hundred painted designs in Byzantine style, sold for $2,945; a MS., on vellum, of the 10th century, viz., "Evangelia Quatuor," folio, with portraits, colored capitals, &c., $348; "Evangelia Quatuor," Byzantine MS. of the 11th century, 8vo., $403; "Dante, La Divina Commedia," small folio MS. of the 15th century, $260; "Officiorum Liber, cum Calendario," decorated MS., on vellum, with paintings, &c., 8vo., $1,195; Offices of the Virgin, on vellum, with paintings, 8vo., $448; "Biblia Hebraica," MS. on vellum, of the 13th century, written in uncial characters, folio, $348.

From the Original, in the possession of T. H. Morrell, Esq.

To the Officers of the late American Army and Navy, assembled on the 4th of July, 1798, in the Society of the Cincinnati of the State of New York:

GENTLEMEN:

Your respectful Address has been presented to me, by your Senators in Congress, Mr. North and Mr. Lawrence, who are also Members of your Society.

The interesting and critical situation of our Country, threatened, as it is, by a very powerful foreign Nation, could not fail to command the attention of gentlemen of your characters and habits of life.

I am happy to find that your opinions coincide with mine upon all the cardinal points: that our essential rights, as a free and independent Nation, are at every hazard to be maintained; that the Constitution of our Country, as established by the choice of the people, is in every event to be defended against all foreign control and interference; that invasion from abroad, from whatever quarter, is to be repelled by united and vigorous exertions; that our Government never ought to subscribe to national degradation; that the evils of war can bear no comparison to the sacrifice or abandonment of those great principles.

It has ever been a maxim with all sound republics, that to give way to injustice is the most flagrant, and to submit to insult is the most pernicious, effect of cowardice. It is impossible, therefore, that you, who fought the battles of our Revolution with so much reputation, upon such principles, should not dedicate your lives to the maintenance of them.

A few words about Coins.

COIN collecting is a pursuit as yet in its infancy in this country. So deeply engaged in the business of the counting-house, of the farm, of the workshop, have the people of these United States been, that they have as yet devoted very little of their time to collecting and studying the chaste and beautiful medals of Greece and Rome; the interesting and ever-varying coins of England, or even the hastily-struck pieces on which the brave pioneers of American independence impressed their quaint but significant devices. And yet the study of coins and medals is at once entertaining and instructive, not alone to him who loves to collect rarities because they are rare, and who revels in the idea that he possesses that which his neighbor does not, and cannot possess; but also to the poet, the sculptor, the painter, and the architect. All these may study with advantage the ancient coins of Greece and Rome, which, for beauty of design and excellence of finish, have never yet been surpassed, or even equaled. To the student of History, the inspection and careful study of coins is of great benefit and importance. "It gives us, so to speak, a personal acquaintance with the rulers and great men of the past; it brings their actions, in a manner, before our eyes, and we sit, as in a theatre, with the actors before us." Pope truly says:

> "The medal, faithful to its charge of fame,
> Through climes and ages bears each form and name;
> In one short view, subjected to our eye,
> Gods, Emperors, Heroes, Sages, Beauties lie."

Probably in no country in the world has such a host of coin collectors sprung up as in England. Besides the immense collections accumulated in the British Museum, and in other public institutions, the innumerable number of private collectors constantly adding to their treasures, can hardly be realized. Numismatic books, many of them modern, and in most cases reliable, are to be found in every well-selected library. Coin collections of vast extent, from various parts of the kingdom, from France, from Germany, and other parts of Europe, are disposed of by auction weekly in London. And the whole business has attained a dignity and importance that cannot be misunderstood or overlooked. We give on the next page a few of the prices that rare and curious coins have sold for at London auctions during the last few years. We quote from priced catalogues of the following sales:—Pembroke sale, 1848; Devonshire, 1844; Stewart, 1841; Thomas, 1844; Dimsdale, 1824; Moore, 1856, &c., &c.

OF THE

Historical Magazine;

AND

NOTES AND QUERIES CONCERNING THE ANTIQUITIES, HISTORY, AND BIOGRAPHY OF AMERICA.

This Magazine was commenced in January, 1857, for the purpose of furnishing a medium of intercommunication between historical societies, authors, and students of history in different parts of the country; and thus supplying a want that had long been felt in the literary world. The work is the organ of the various historical societies and kindred associations in the United States, and contains condensed official reports of their proceedings, and the most valuable and interesting papers read before them. In more than one half of the States in the Union, there are State societies, besides many county, town, and family associations, instituted to investigate and perpetuate our history. It is evident that the proceedings at the meetings of these societies, and the essays and discussions delivered before them, are of interest to all students of history now, and will form a valuable source of information to future inquirers. The principal societies of this kind furnish authentic reports of their meetings for the Magazine.

Another department of this work is devoted to "Notes and Queries," on the plan of the English periodical of that name; which, as comprising many subjects not strictly historical, such as bibliography, and local customs, will interest the general reader. This section will be found very useful to historians and others, who, while tracing an historical investigation, or ancestry of New-England, Southern, or Western derivation, may be unable to prosecute their inquiries in person, upon the spot. Every item relating to our early customs or history,—every fact to be gleaned from English town or county histories,—bearing upon the settlers of this country or their colonial history, will be diligently sought for.

The co-operation of all gentlemen engaged in literary and historical pursuits, in every part of our country, is earnestly requested. The work is the organ of no party, section, or clique; but is devoted to the encouragement of historical inquiry in every portion of the United States, from all parts of which contributions have been received.

Among those who have contributed to the first volume, are: E. B. O'Callaghan, of Albany, N. Y.; Pliny H. White, of Amherst, Mass.; S. F. Streeter, Brantz Mayer, and G. L. L. IMPORTANT TO LITERARY MEN.

The North-American Review.

The Publishers would commend this Review to the attention of the American public, as a work which, dating almost from the commencement of the literature of our country, has always sustained its high reputation wherever our language is known.

It is to America what the Edinburgh and London Quarterlies are to Great Britain, and takes rank with them both in Europe and America.

Nearly all the great authors of our country were first brought before the public through this Review. Webster, Everett, Sparks, Prescott, Bancroft, with scores of other noted men, of whom our literature is proud, have been among its contributors; and its pages continue to reflect the best talent of our times.

The North-American Review is published Quarterly, in numbers of nearly three hundred pages each, at Five Dollars a year.

The American Almanac is too well known to require more than a simple announcement, having been regularly published for twenty-nine years, and having become, on account of the extent and reliability of its information, an indispensable companion to scholars and men of every profession and business. No library is now complete without it.

The volume for 1858 will be found to be a complete record of the government, finances, legislation, public institutions, internal improvements, and resources of the United States, and of the several States.

"It surpasses, in comprehensiveness and value, any similar compend in the world."—National Intelligencer.

"One of the most useful and valuable publications of the country and the age. As a book of reference, we should hardly know how to spare the American Almanac from our table; there are few professional or business men who will not find their account in drafts upon the endless variety of useful knowledge with which its pages are crowded."—Pittsburg Journal.

"Every page is worth the price of the work. As a general reference book, it has no equal."—Troy Whig.
